Countless data flows, extensive value chains and increasing mobility: Globalization is bringing the world ever closer together, with consequences for trade, inequality, growth, the environment and much more. We highlight positive and negative developments that are influenced by globalization. Would you like to learn more about these (economic) interrelations and their effects on Germany, Europe, and the world? Then please fill out the mask on this page - we will keep you up to date with newsletters and information on our publications and events.
